Note on learning to spell

- Learning spellings is an important first step in getting children to start reading.
- Before a child learns to spell, it is important for the child to know letter sounds. Help your child go through all the alphabets and practice the sound each letter makes.
- Once the child can identify letter sounds, you can introduce your child to three letter words.
- It may be better to start with simple words which are in the CVC (consonant/vowel/consonant) format. These type of words, (for example, “cat”, “sit” and “leg”), are usually the first used to teach children to “sound out” words.
- Let your child practice these initial spellings a lot, till they get more confident identifying the letter sounds and blending them to form words. It is best to make spelling practice fun, by teaching through games and rhymes.
- Once the child is comfortable with an initial vocabulary of 3 letter words, introduce some more 3 letter words and simple 4 letter words.
- As a next step introduce your child to “sight words”. These are basic words such as “that”, “the” and “why” which are not so easily sounded out and so instead children are taught to recognize the word as a whole.
- With regular practice, your child will soon be ready to read simple stories.
